Kohl's wants students and teachers to dream big about what they could do with $500,000. Twenty schools will each win the cash through a contest on Facebook. Through Sept. 3, contestants can enter by visiting www.facebook.com/kohls and write about what their school could do with the money, whether it's starting an art program or adding a computer lab. The contest recognizes the 10th anniversary of Kohl's Cares, a philanthropic program that supports children's health and education. The $10 million up for grabs comes from the Kohl's

Cares merchandise program, which donates the net profit from plush toys and books.
